biography

Good People is a band that plays music through amplifiers and microphones. Their songs have music and words in them. Some of those words include the following: "and", "the", "you", "baby", and "dick". The music includes, but is not limited to, the following chords: "A".

Their sound is a unique blend of genres best described as "face-ripping chameleon delta funk." All five members of the band are multi-instrumentalists and are prolific in their studio based outside of Nashville, Tennessee. Since forming in 2000, they have played hundreds of shows throughout the South and the Midwest, and have left a trail of loyal fans and illegitimate children in their wake.

Good People has also supported such national acts as Nashville Pussy, Roger Kline and the Peacemakers, The Kudzu Kings, The Connells, and the one and only Vanilla Ice. They guarantee the audience will have a great time at their show. If they don't, the band will pay for their own beer.

This band promotes their shows like no other. They do their best to either get flyers to someone they know in the town they are playing in to put up or get there hours early and hit the streets. They also have an unmatched ability to land radio spots at the last minute thanks in large part to their smooth talk and sharp wit. Oh, and luck. In what ever way they can, they use of every available minute they are in town to promote their shows.
